

Professor Sakari Karvonen

Research Professor at National Institute for Health and Welfare, Social Policy Research. He has published more than one hundred peer-reviewed scientific publications and around 80 other scientific publications especially in the areas of social determinants of health, social monitoring and youth studies. His recent publications include books 'Health promotion and inequality' (in Finnish, edited with Marita Sihto) and 'Child Poverty in the 2010s' (in Finnish, edited with Minna Salmi). His expertise covers divisions of welfare, health and lifestyles of the population including studies on attitudes and value patterns of the society. He is also an Adjunct Professor (Docent) in Medical Sociology at University of Helsinki and President of European Society for Health and Medical Sociology (ESHMS).